3 How we use your information

We mainly use your information to provide and administer your pension benefits and as otherwise necessary for the wider administration of the Plan.

The government has established pensions dashboards to allow individuals to securely access their pension information online in one place. By law, we must connect to this system, which requires preparing and matching member data to verify if an individual has a pension with us. If a match is found, relevant pension data will be shared with that individual. If there is only a possible match, further checks will be carried out. This process involves sharing your personal information (including name, date of birth, and address) with the Pensions Dashboards. In connection with the operation of the Pensions Dashboards, member data may also be shared with regulatory bodies like the Money and Pensions Service (MaPs), the Pensions Regulator and the Financial Conduct Authority.

We also use your information to fulfil our legal obligations and exercise our legal rights in relation to the Plan.

Lawful basis

We must identify a lawful basis for our use of your information. Our main lawful basis for administering and providing benefits to you are the legitimate interests in you receiving your benefits and the successful operation of the Plan. We also rely on our legal obligations as pensions trustees. We are under a legal duty to manage the Plan on behalf of its members and beneficiaries.

Our main lawful basis for using your information for the wider administration and development of the Plan are the legitimate interests we have in the ongoing success and stability of the Plan. We also rely on our legal obligations as pension trustees.

We will only use your information for the purposes of a legitimate interest when there is no unfair impact on you.

Special category

Where we use your special category information, we must identify an additional condition. This condition will generally be your consent.

However, we will also use your special category information:

- In the field of social security and social protection law.
- For a substantial public interest.
- For exercising or defending legal claims.
- Where you manifestly made the information public.

The table below sets out in more detail how we use your information and our lawful bases.
